Red Sox Shut Out Cardinals

York's Three Run Homer Puts Boston Out in Front in 1946 World Series

By Jack Hand

FENWAY PARK, Boston, Oct. 9 —(AP)— Rudy York's tremendous 400-foot home run in the first inning with two men on base--his second game-winning homer of the world series — helped Dave Ferris earn a 4-0 victory today that put the Boston Red Sox out in front of the St. Louis Cardinals, two games to one.

The Sox won the opener at St. Louis on York's tenth inning homer that made the score 3-2.

34,500 See Game

The capacity crowd of 34,500, which paid $140,451, thrilled to a fine pitching job by Ferris in holding the cards at bay.

Only in the ninth when Stan Musial unloaded a long triple that hit the center field wall on one bounce did the National League champions seriously threaten. There were two out and Ferris struck out Slaughter to end the game.

Williams Bunts for Hit

Ted Williams foiled the "Dyer Shift" by dumping a bunt single past third base in the third inning after he had been walked intentionally in the first inning. He had been criticized for failing to bunt in the first two games.

After that when Williams came up, the Cardinals pulled a halfway variation in which Whitey Kurowski remained on third bass and Marty Marion moved over directly behind second. Red Schoendienst still played a normal first base and Stan Musial was right on the foul line with the outfield pulled around to right.

Williams drove Slaughter way back to the barrier with a long liner in the eighth but it was just another out. His only hit was the bunt as he struck out once, flied out once and walked in the other trips.

Murry Dickson pitched a steady ball game through seven innings after the opening blast by York. But that wasn't good enough as Ferriss, making his series debut, was in superb form, pitching for the corners all afternoon and hitting them most of the time.

Power Explodes In First

There was one out in the first when the Sox power exploded. It appeared to start innocently enough with Johnny Pesky's line single past third that just did remain in fair territory. He moved to second while Dom DiMaggio was being thrown out at first.

They didn't shift on Williams because Manager Eddie Dyer had given orders he was to be passed intentionally with first base open.

Up stepped York to hammer a 3-2 pitch far and away over the left field barrier. It hit on the top of the fence, bounced high and disappeared into the street.

Casey Stengel, playing with the New York Giants against the Yankees won two series games with homers in 1923, the opener by 5-4 and the third game, 1-0.

Technically the Sox' eighth inning run today would have given Boston the game, but as far as the Cardinals were concerned York's first inning homer with two aboard did the trick.

Umpires: Barlick (NL), plate; Berry (AL) first base; Ballanfant (NL) second base; Hubbard (AL) third base.

First Inning Cards

Schoendienst on the second pitch bounced right back to the box and Ferriss tossed him out easily. Moore hit the first pitch to Doerr who threw him out. Musial walked on five pitches. On the third pitch to slaughter, Musial stole second base, but was trapped off the base and finally run down.

No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

First Inning Red Sox

Walker ran back and gathered in Moses' long fly. Pesky rapped a low line single for the first hit of the game. DiMaggio chopped a high bounder along the first base line where Musial made the tag for the putout, Pesky sliding into second. Dickson passed Ted purposely. York hit a tremendous home run over the left field wall, connecting on a three and two pitch. Pesky and Williams scored ahead of him to put the Red Sox ahead 3-0. Doerr went down swinging. Three runs, two hits, no errors, none left.

Second Inning Cards

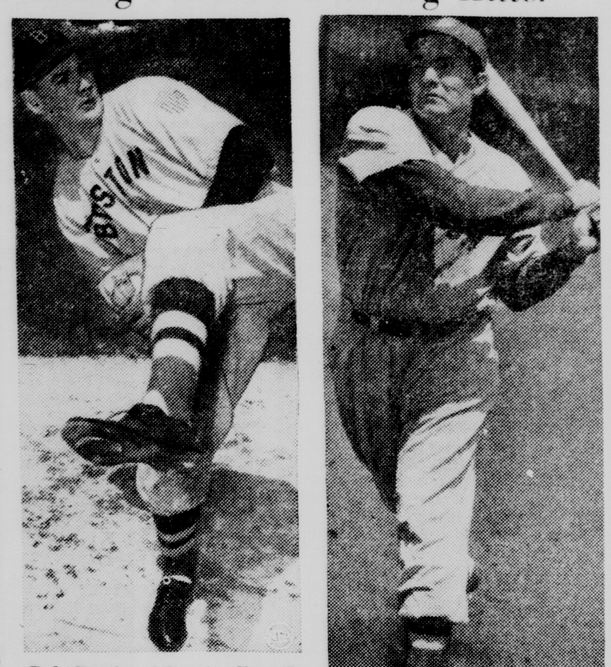

Slaughter grounded to Pesky and was an easy out. Kurowski rolled to Doerr. York scooped up Garagiola's slow bounder and stepped on first

Marshall to Shanghai

NANKING, Oct. 9.—(AP)—General Marshall, fighting for a resumption of negotiations to end China's intensifying civil war, flew to Shanghai today for a personal conference with Gen. Chou En-Lai, the communist negotiator who yesterday rejected Chiang Kai-Shek's latest proposal for a 10-day truce in the government's Kalgan offensive to permit peace talks.

Winning Pitcher---Winning Hitter

Bob Ferriss (above) allowed six hits to the Cardinals—scattered too—and not a run in the third game of the 1946 World Series, to put the Sox ahead of the Birds one game. Rudy York (right) was given that "Sunday pitch" by Murry Dickson, with Pesky and Williams on base — resulting in a home run for York and three scores for Boston.

Fiery Trail of Meteors From Comet to be Visible Tonight

NEW YORK, Oct. 9—(AP)—One of the most spectacular celestial displays in history starts about 10 p. m. (EST) tonight with the comet Giacobini-Zinner, shedding millions of meteors.

The head of the comet zipped past earth nine days ago but was 24,000,000 miles away and not many people noticed.

Tonight the fiery tail of meteors will be 131,000 miles away, about half the distance to the moon. It was to be visible to the naked eye over the eastern half of the United States and Canada—but the weather bureau said rain and clouds may hide the display.

NEW YORK, Oct. 9—(AP)—Astronomers forecast the most spectacular celestial display in the memory of modern man would appear at the same time tonight throughout the United States and Canada and in approximately the same quarter of the heavens.

Astronomers differed, however, on the approximate universal moment of appearance of the fiery tail of meteors from the comet Giacombini-Zinner which sped past earth 24,000,000 distant nine days ago.

The Hayden Planitarium said the comet itself was well plotted but that the mathematical minds differed on the timed positions of its flaming tail.

Unless prevented by poor weather, the Plaetarium said, watchers should turn to the northwest and trace a line to the Eenith overhead. Approximately one-third of the way up from the horizon will be the radiant point of the flaming display which will break across the sky.

Man Writing Katy History Lions Speaker

Club Makes Plans For Hallowe'en Parade, Contests

The Sedalia Lions Club will sponsor a Hallowe'en parade and contests on Thursday night, October 31 in Sedalia, as part of a civic program. Arrangements for this celebration were announced by Harry Haddock, chairman of the committee in charge.

Awards are being arranged for the best costumes. Apple bobbing games will be held on the court house lawn and prizes for winners given.

Complete plans for this program are to be made at a meeting to be held at the Chamber of Commerce offices Friday night.

W. A. S. Douglas, who is writing a history of the Missouri-Kansas-Texas railroad, was the guest speaker. Mr. Douglas told of his visit to Sedalia to gather material for his book, which will include the story of Sedalia, as well as Parsons, Kas., San Antonio and some other towns and cities on the Katy.

"This community being as small as it is, the life line of Sedalia is the railroads," he said. "I will appreciate any information any of you gentlemen can furnish me with reference to the early days of the Missouri-Kansas-Texas railroad, information which you probably have gained from your parents and grandparents."

Mr. Douglas also made remarks concerning the railroads and bus lines.

Wm. Davis Presided

He was introduced by William Davis, program chairman.

Today's guests were Frank Buchanan and V. V. Masterson, assistant director of publicity of the M-K-T of C. M. Cecil, Philip Kain of Leo Bopp, J. H. Brunkhorst of Paul Hausam, Glen Browning of Abe Silverman, Ray McCue of Roy J. Schick.

The attendance contest between the two teams was announced by Paul Hausam. Team number one, he reported, was lagging behind team number two, up to and including today's meeting.

Emergency Conference to Discuss Meat

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9.—(AP)—An emergency conference of some top administration officials was called today amid mounting pressure from within and without the democratic party for action to ease the meat shortage.

Secretary of Agriculture Anderson, Democratic National Chairman Hannegan and Price Administrator Paul Porter were among those summoned for a get-together on the lack of meat—a crucial problem for politicians as well as housewives.

Another party official who planned to attend the meeting predicted to a reporter that steps would be taken quickly —he did not say what—to ease the meat shortage. He reiterated President Truman's assertion that no special session of congress is in the works.

Preamble to The Italian Settlement

Adopted; Yugoslavia Abstained From Voting

By Joseph Dynan

PARIS, Oct. 9—(AP)—Peace conference delegates adopted numerous clauses of the Italian peace treaty in rapid fire order today, but the East and West split frequently along lines indicated previously in commission debates.

Often the Slav group voted enbloc without the Soviet Union as the Russians, standing by their four-power commitments, aligned themselves with the western nations in overriding opposition.

PARIS, Oct. 9—(AP)—The peace conference entered its final phase of treaty-writing late today with the adoption of the preamble to the Italian settlement.

Yugoslavia abstained in the voting on the preamble, though the preamble text had been adopted unanimously in commission.

Articles one and two were passed quickly and unanimously.

Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov, who assailed the Italian treaty draft plan for the projected free state of Trieste as an "undemocratic" means of keeping that strategic Adriatic area under British-American control in an address to the delegates this morning, presided as chairman.

Molotov opened the balloting after calling on the spokesman of the Italian political commission, A. D. McIntosh of New Zealand, to present his report.

The conference secretary-general, Jacques Fouques Duparc, explained the voting rules for the final decisions.

Treaty To Conference

Molotov then put the treaty preamble to the conference.

The conference witnessed its first real division on Article three dealing with the Italy-Yugoslav frontiers. White Russia demanded a roll call on its amendment, which had failed in commission, to move the line westward in Yugoslavia's favor.

It was rejected, 14 to 5, with two abstentions. Ethiopia joined White Russia, Poland, Czechoslovakia, and the Ukraine in backing the amendment. Belgium and Yugoslavia abstained.

The same vote defeated a similar Yugoslav amendment. On the second roll call, Belgium and Ethiopia abstained, and Yugoslavia, joined the other Slav states in supporting it. In both cases, Russia, faithful to her Big Four commitments, voted against the amendments, thus supporting the four-power agreements.

Juneau for Statehood

GADS HILL, Mo., Oct. 9—(AP)—Richard Sutton aged 60, resident of Gads Hill, was struck by a Missouri Pacific freight train today. Trainmen said he was sitting on the track and appeared to be asleep.

Mead Hopes For Quick Action on Meat

President Making Personal Survey Of the Situation

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9—(AP)—One of OPA's staunchest champions in last summer's senate battle said he is giving "serious consideration" to junking all price controls today as President Truman pressed ahead with his personal survey on the meat shortage.

Senator Pepper (D-Fla), who lost a fight last June for renewal of the price control act without amendments, declared in a statement:

"If price control is getting back like prohibition in its last days so that public opinion is not going to support effective price control and the congress is not going to support it, we might just as well not try to have it."

As White House press secretary Charles G. Ross told reporters that President Truman is "getting reports every day" on the situation, these others joined in the sizzling debate over steaks and chops:

Senator Mead (D-NY) in a statement after conferring with White House, OPA and agriculture department officials: "I am extremely hopeful that an emergency decision will be forthcoming very shortly which will help to relieve the meat shortage."

Blames Democrats

Marion E. Martin, assistant Republican national chairman, in a statement issued through GOP headquarters: "The Democrats' contention that they are not responsible is an insult to the intelligence of . . . American women who are now standing in lines all over the country trying to buy meats, sugar, soap and other household necessities."

The justice department reported it is continuing its investigation on the meat industry A department offciial so advised a reporter when asked for comment on a published report that the months-long inquiry had yielded no evidence of conspiracy or collusion in the meat shortage.

Mr. Truman told his news conference on Sept. 26 that he had been investigating the situation for some time. He attributed the shortage then to an "extraordinarily large slaughter" in July and August, when price controls were temporarily off and predicted a "greater quantity" of meat in the near future.

May Grow Worse

Last Thursday the president said he agreed with reconversion director John R. Steelman's report that the meat shortage may grow worse this winter, and announced he was having a survey made. While foreseeing shortages ahead, he said there will be no meat famine.

Ross told reporters Mr. Truman will hold his weekly news conference at 4 p. m. (EST) tomorrow, but that he does not expect any announcement on meat at that time.

Asked if F. H. LaGuardia, director general of UNRRA, had urged the possible importation of Argentine beef for that agency in a White House call yesterday, Ross said he had no information on that.

As to whether anyone had suggested Argentine importations, Ross replied:

"Every possible suggestion has been made to him by someone."

On another question as to whether a possible special session of congress to deal with the meat situation had been the subject of discussion at a cabinet meeting, Ross said he did not know, but that he doubted it.

Restaurant Owner Jumps In the River

NEW YORK, Oct. 9—(AP)—A restaurant owner told police today he was so worried over the meat, butter and sugar shortages that he felt like jumping off Brooklyn bridge into the East river — so he did.

Waterlogged and unconscious, 41-year-old Charles John Rezba, the restaurant owner, was pulled from the river by the crew of an army engineer's boat. Police said Rezba jumped off the bridge.

He was taken to Gouverneur hospital where attendants said he was expected to recover.

Veteran Who Lost Legs Locates Here

Received Gifts on Vox Pop Program in St. Louis Tuesday

Jerry Ernest Trotter, 24 years old, of 214 West Fifth street, who lost both legs while serving with the 69th infantry in Germany a few days before the war ended, appeared on the Vox Pop radio program in St. Louis Tuesday night and received as gifts a range, a registered black cocker spaniel and services of an attorney to help obtain copyright privileges on an invention of his.

Learning that the Vox Pop show interviewing disabled war veterans, was to be in St. Louis, Mrs. Oscar Trotter, a sister-in-law, who lives in St. Louis, made arrangements for him to appear on the program and it was a complete surprise to the young man when he received word to be in St. Louis Monday to be interviewed for the program Tuesday night. He left Sedalia Sunday for St. Louis.

Enlisted in Oregon

Trotter enlisted in the army before the war at Pineville, Ore., and was sent to Ft. Lewis, Wash., for training. He then went to the Aleutians with the 39th infantry division, where he served two and one-half years. He returned to the states and was sent to Camp Shelby, Miss., with the 69th division, going with that division to Germany. He was with the first unit to meet the Russians.

On June 17 of this year he received his discharge from service in Washington, D. C., and the next day he was married to Veronica Murphy in that city. He was 24 years old on August 17.

With his bride he came to Sedalia to visit his brother, Glenn E. Trotter. Glenn received his discharge from service in October, 1945, and came to Sedalia in November, where he started to work at the Missouri Pacific shops. Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Trotter purchased the home at 214 West Fifth street. Jerry Trotter and his wife liked Sedalia, too, and since they were looking for a place to locate decided to stay here. He expects to buy a home, under the GI Bill of ights and plans to start an electrical business here. He will also be presented with a new car about the twentieth of the month by the government.

The Trotter brothers are from Pineville, Ore., and their father, W. L. Trotter, is in Sedalia with them. Their mother is at present in East St. Louis.

Jerry Trotter has artifical limbs, with which he is learning to walk, but now he gets around mostly in a wheel chair.

Higginsville Hopes To Settle Differences

HIGINSVILLE, Mo., Oct. 9—(AP)—The city council and operators of the service stations will meet tonight in an effort to settle a controversy which led to the closing of all 17 filling stations in the city.

The operators closed their places a week ago today after the council imposed a one-cent-a-gallon tax on gasoline sales. A motion to repeal the measure ended in a tie vote Monday night after the mayor declined to cast the deciding ballot.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 9—(AP)—Attorney General Robert W. Kenny, in an opinion, barred the sale of prisoner-made handiwork to fellow convicts in California prisons, although it may be sold to the public.

Kenny ruled against the prisoners' purchases by defining "public" from the dictionary to mean "people at large."

Garsson Case to Jurors

As Demands Arise For Rep. May to Answer Questions On War Munitions

By William T. Peacock

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9—(AP)—The government completed arrangements today to lay the "Garsson case" before federal grand jurors as a demand arose that Rep. May (D-Ky) answer Senate investigators' questions about the wartime munitions combine prior to the November election.

Senator Brewster (R-Me), a member of the senate war investigating committee which spent six weeks delving into the once sprawling arms venture, told reporters that "in justice to May" the committee should arrange an early appearance for the Kentucky law-maker.

There was no reference to May in Attorney General Tom Clark's terse announcement last night that the Garsson case would be presented to a grand jury, beginning tomorrow. Chief Justice Bolitha J. Laws of the District of Columbia court is to be in charge of the inquiry.

FBI Investigated

Two special assistants to Clark, William A. Paisley and Isaiah Matlack will present the government's case. It was built upon a "full" FBI investigation into facts turned up by the senate committee's lengthy hearings.

Without referring to the pending grand jury phase, Brewster commented that May is a candidate for re-election and that as the Garsson investigation now stands there has been testimony from various witnesses regarding May's activities as chairman of the house military committee.

"Certainly he should have an opportunity to give his testimony at public hearings," Brewster added.

The Maine senator said he took the same attitude when the senate committee decided at a recent meeting against calling May until he has recovered further from a heart attack. May had advised that he would be able to testify for about an hour at a time daily.

The Kentuckian suffered the heart attack the day before he was originally scheduled to testify last summer. Since then, he had been recuperating at his Prestonsburg, Ky., home.

Denial for Truman

Within the last ten days the Garsson case and May's connection with it has been brought into the West Virginia campaign where chairman Harley Kilgore of the investigating committee is running for reelection to the senate.

Tom Sweeney, Kilgore's Republican opponent contended that Kilgore agreed with President Truman at a recent White House conference to "sidetrack" May's appearance at least until after the election.

Charles G. Ross, presidential press secretary denied this, telling reporters that Mr. Truman had told him May's name did not come up in the conference with Kilgore.

In West Virginia, Kilgore said the committee would hear May when the Kentuckian is physically able to testify.

May has declared in public statements that he did not profit in any way from relations with the Garssons and that all his activities were intended solely to further the war effort.

Army officers testified to the senate group that May importuned them to award contracts to munitions firms organized by Henry and Murray Garrson, brothers.

Dog Salesman Pleads Guilty

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., Oct. 9—(AP)—William Davis Frazee, middle aged town marshal of Willow Springs, was fined $250 and placed on five-year probation this morning by Federal Judge Albert Reeves on Frazee's guilty plea to charges of using the mails to defraud.

The case grew out of Frazee allegedly advertising English shepherd dogs for sale — and shipping his customers mongrels which he bought from neighboring farmers.

Assistant District Attorney Richard Musser informed the court that complaints had been received from two publications — the Kansas City Star and The Prairie Farmer — about Frazee's "guaranteed" advertisements.

Defense Attorney Wayne Walker countered with a report of letters from all parts of the country from supposedly well pleased customers who ordered more dogs.

It was revealed that Frazee pleaded guilty to a similar charge in 1937, was placed on a two-year probation and fined $50.

Judge Reeves commented: "The stopping of your dog business is not a condition of the parole, but you should quit, since it seems you can't conduct it properly."

Author Here Writing History of Katy Railroad

W. A. S. Douglas, who has been chosen by Donald V. Fraser, president of the Missouri-Kansas-Texas Lines to write the long-contemplated history of the Katy railroad, is now in Sedalia getting material for the book and today addressed members of the Lions club. He is one of America's best known newspapermen, foreign and war correspondents.

Douglas was born in Northern Ireland sixty years ago, served in the British Army as a bugler boy, and won a commission from the ranks before he was twenty years of age. Coming to the United States in 1907, he went almost immediately into Newspaper work as a cub reporter on the Philadelphia North American; since then he has held every job available on a newspaper up to and including that of managing editor.

Teller of Folk Stories

As one of the stalwarts of the old American Mercury, under the editorship of H. L. Mencken, Mr. Douglas became noted as a teller of folk stories of the region covered by the Katy Railroad. Two such tales, "The End of Ooffty-Goofty" and "Ku Klux," were adjudged the best short stories of their respective years.

Mr. Doublas, in addition to winning a commission from the ranks in the British Army, did the same thing in the United States army. In the first World War he was Gen. Patton's sergeant tank driver. He covered the second World War from the beginning until shortly after the liberation of Paris, landing in Normandy on D day with the First U. S. Army. He was injured on the French costal front in November, 1944, and sent home.

W. A. S. Douglas

With Chicago Sun

Mr. Douglas is now an editorial writer and columnist for the Chicago Sun, with which newspaper he has been connected since its founding by Marshall Field in 1941. He is the author of four books and is a regular contributor to such magazines as Collier's, Atlantic, American Mercury, Household, Esquire, Coronet and others.

The history of the Katy Railroad, tentatively titled "The Katy Story," will be finished in the early spring of 1947.

K-State in Another Bid To Beat Mizzou

It's Been Eight Years Since the Wildcats Have Won

By Skipper Patrick

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 9—(AP)—The Kansas State Wildcats, soundly whipped in two starts, will attempt something at Manhattan Saturday they haven't succeeded in doing since 1938—defeat the Missouri Tigers in a football game.

The Wildcats can point to a string of ten seasons running—1929 through 1938—when the best Missouri could do was one victory and two 7-7 ties. But after that their pride runs out. Kansas State's last win in this series was at Columbia, 21-12, eight years ago.

Coach Hobbs Adams isn't very happy over the lickings his Wildcats have taken from Hardin-Simmons and Nebraska in their first two games, but he hasn't pulled out the crying towel.

"We just haven't done enough to get up a good growl," he explained. "But we are trying our best to get ready to give Missouri a good game Saturday."

Coach Don Faurot of the highly favored Missourians has busied himself this week cautioning his Tigers that Kansas State has considerable material and that they will be on the rebound.

Both the Wildcats and Tigers likely will have new men in their lineups. Adams has promoted sub Royce Pence to first string center and shifted end Rollin Prather to right tackle and center Gene Snyder to quarterback.

Faurot likely will have to come up with a replacement for left half Bob Hopkins who suffered a pulled leg muscle in the Tiger victory over St. Louis last Friday night.

The Wildcats will be seeing their first conference victory since their 18 to 14 win over Kansas in 1944.

At Lincoln, Neb., the Nebraska Cornhuskers were encouraged over the running of scatback Jimmy Myers, who played well against Kansas State, and Coach Bernie Masterson planned to use him against Iowa University at Iowa City Saturday. The 'Huskers had one shift in first team personnel, 230-pound mike Di Biase taking over right tackle from Vern Stiner.

Up at Ames, Ia., Coach Mike Michalske continued to seek a scoring punch to throw against the invading Kansas Jayhawks, once tied but unbeaten this season.

Coach George Sauer, dissatisfied with his team's play against Wichita kept the Jayhawks busy until after dark yesterday.

The Oklahoma Sooners, priming for their rough assignment with Texas at Dallas Saturday, brushed up on their aerial offensive as Charlie Heard, rugged wingback of 1943 and '44, joined the team.

Hoople Denounces His Detractors But All Great Men Make Enemies

Egad! Let me say at the very outset of my remarks, that all great men make enemies. That's a quotation from Confucius, gentle readers

The remark is prompted by several derogatory letters I have received from the usual folk who write letters to the editor complaining that the grass in the park is kept cut too short, and they can't read classified ads by a certain street lamp, and so on.

Yes, these detractors finally are picking on me, making sport of my selections. Great Caesar! Are they not aware that if anyone in the United States is in a position to talk about football, it is I, from my unusually high point of vantage?

(Editor's Note: He sees a game every Saturday, his point of vantage being a telephone pole outside the park.)

But figures speak for themselves, and if my crass critics want to eat a few words in lieu of meat, let them read my prognostications for the games of this Saturday. They are appended herewith, naturally.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By Hugh Fullerton, Jr.

BOSTON, Oct. 9—(AP)—They're talking about the weather in Boston even more than they're talking about Ted Williams' failure to hit through the Cards' lopsided defense—and that requires a lot of talk. . . . The weather man has predicted that it will be cloudy and cool today—"pretty miserable baseball weather"—but that rain would hold off until after the third world series game. Rain, at this time of year in New England, usually means a northeasterner that keeps bringing in water by the bucketful for about three days.

Much At Steak

News item: Iowa State football squad to dine on horse meat.)

With horse meat steaks on the training table
Iowa State should be strong and able,
Have plenty of speed, and also know
How to play the game—straight, place or show.

Fenway Foolishness

One red-hot rumor here is that Red Rolfe, an old Penacook, N. H., boy, will be the Yankees next manager although even those who say they know have a hard time seeing the mild-mannered Red getting along with boisterous Larry MacPhail . . . Another is that Sam Breadon will dispose of a couple of his pennant-winning Cards during the winter and the buyer will be Lou Perini, who needs only to strengthen a couple of spots to make his Braves into flag contenders . . . Leo Durocher is staying at the same hotel as three National League umpires—which shows you how tough it is to get a room in this town.

Shear Nonsense

The first buy in line at the bleacher entrance to Fenway Park, Grover C. Gilmore, arrived Monday night, 38 hours before the starting time of today's game. . . . The third to arrive was a barber, who took one look at Gilmore and then sent to a nearby drug store for a razor and soap so he could get to work on Gilmore.

Gold Injured; Loses Match To Graham

Sirois Disqualified; Marshall Esteppe Wins His Match

Roy "Cowboy" Graham, Dallas, Texas, applied his famous diamond neck hold, and eliminated Mickey Gold, New York City, from further competition in their match Tuesday night. Graham lost the first fall to Gold, but he successfully got the best of the young wrestler from New York state by getting his famous hold, resulting in muscle spasms in his neck.

Gold after an examination by Dr. J. E. Mitchell, was not permitted to return to the ring. In fact he couldn't have made an appearance if he wanted to, although he did make an excellant showing during the first fall and was the favorite of the crowd.

Graham after the match said, "I have broken steers necks with it, but a man knows how to resist the hold, hence it isn't likely to break his neck, but I can assure you anytime I use it I'll win. Furthermore I intend to use it on every opponent I meet whether the crowd likes it or not, that is if I can get it on."

The first fall was won by Gold using a series of flying tackles and body smother in 17 minutes and 25 seconds. The second fall time was 10 minutes 30 seconds.

Marshall Esteppe, Sturgeon, and Walter Sirois, Montreal, Canada, had the crowd in an uproar in their fight-wrestling match, won by Esteppe. Sirois took the first fall in 13 minutes using the step-over toe hold. Esteppe came back in 4 minutes and 30 seconds using a series of knee lifts and the abdominal stretch to win the second and the third Esteppe won when Referee Charles Thomas disqualified Cirois after 3 minutes and 20 seconds.

So heated was the third fall period that Sirois knocked Thomas to the canvas on his back and he was up and awarded the match to Esteppe. This didn't end the show as they battled for another three minutes in the ring before separated and sent to the dressing rooms.

Nelson Hebert, who wrestles under the name of Pierre Bonnepart won his match with Dick Hatcher, Fresno, California, in 15 minutes and 55 seconds using the body slam.

The Frenchman who hails from New Caledonia, is expected to be returned again soon for mo matches.

Miss Wanda Merry Price, the daughter of Mrs. Ella Price of Knob Noster and Mr. William E. Norman, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Norman of north of Knob Noster were married Sunday evening at 6 o'clock at an impressive candlelight service at the Latter Day Saint church in Knob Noster. Elder A. Ward Hougas of Montserrat read the double ring ceremony.

The altar was decorated with garden flowers. White candelabra holding seven long white tapers were on either side of the altar and candles were arranged along the windows. Preceding the ceremony Mrs. Chris Petree played several piano selections and accompanied Vinton Bugbee, who sang "Always." An acapella chorus sang "Tell Me Why." Miss Mary Hogan played the bridal chorus from "Lohengrin" as the processional and the Mendelssohn Wedding March as the recessional. During the ceremony she played Schubert's "Serenade." The candles were lighted by the bridegroom's cousin Miss Wanda Newton and Miss Lorene Mauzey, who wore light blue gowns with pink rosebud corsages.

Mrs. William E. Norman

Prisoners Say No Good Word For Goering

Feel His Conduct Contributed to Severity of Penalties

By Thomas A. Reedy

NUERNBERG, Oct. 9— (AP) — Maj. Frederick Teich said today that Hermann Goering, the picture of bravado and courage in public, finally has succumed to the strain of waiting for the hangman and has become "a beaten and broken man."

Goering, who wept for the first time yesterday after seeing his wife, now lies despondently on a cot in his cell staring into space, said Teich, the security official who makes a daily check on the condition of the prisoners.

None of the other prisoners "have a good word to say for Goering," Teich said, adding that most of them feel the former reichs - marshall's conduct contributed in large measure to the severity of the penalties imposed on the others.

NUERNBERG, Germany, Oct 9—(AP)—A letter of Field Marshal Wilhelm Keitel asks the Allied control council, which met in Berlin today, to have him shot instead of hanged.

The former chief of the German high command told the council, composed of the top occupation generals of the four big powers, he hoped his execution as a war criminal would serve as a "blessing" to the German people and "a credit to the Germany army."

Resigned Depression

Most of the 11 condemned men have fallen into a state of resigned depression and decline to discuss the verdicts and sentences anymore, he continued, adding that Grand Admiral Erich Raeder was in despair because of the failure of his wife to arrive. The Russians reported on Sept. 26 that they were escorting her from Berlin to Nuernberg, but thus far she has failed to appear.

Franz Von Papen, Jr., son of the acquitted former Nazi diplomat, was released from Dachau today and removed from the category of prisoner of war.

He had been on parole while serving as assistant counsel for his father, but returned to prisoner status for technical reasons when the war crimes trial ended. The elder Von Papen still is in the Nuernberg jail.

Williams then obliged by looking at a third strike. No runs, one hit, no errors, one left.

Sixth Inning Cards

Dickson lined a long double into left field for the third Cardinal hit. DiMaggio came in fast for Schoendienst's fly and made a shoestring catch, then threw to second to double up Dickson who was halfway down to third. It was the Sox first double play of the series. Looking Backward

Forty Years Ago

William Jennings Bryan, on a four days' speaking tour of Missouri, arrived this afternoon being accorded a rousing welcome after addressing a crowd of about 5,000 at Clinton. All incoming trains brought people to the Bryan meeting. He spoke for an nour at the Sedalia theater and later departed for Columbia for an address at night.

F. L. Farley and family moved to their new home that Mr. Farley recently purchased at Fourth street and Grand avenue.

Bogus silver dollars, halves and quarters are said to be in circulation in Sedalia and a considerable number of them are reported to have found their way to Negro crap games in the city.

A coincidence in the bringing of the Bryan special train into Sedalia was—that the conductor, K. A. Easley, Engineer Challacombe, in the cab, the brakeman, fireman and porter of the train were all Republicans. Most of the railroad men in Sedalia, however, vote the Democratic ticket.

There was a heavy frost this morning, the mercury at 6 o'clock registering 33 degrees above zero.

The Markets

Stock Market Breaks

NEW YORK, Oct. 9—(AP)—Pivotal shares dropped one to around 4 points today as the stock market broke sharply on a noon-hour flood of offerings.

Rails and some motors were depressed at the opening, but as the list sough to regain its balance, a new selling outburst at noon broke the early resistance of steers, and other sections joined in a general slide. Many issues fell to new lows for the year or longer. Comebacks were negligible near the close.

Predict Record Peak Income

Predict Tapering Off Toward The Close Of The Year

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9—(AP)—The Bureau of Agricultural Economics predicted Tuesday the national income will climb to a record peak of $175,000,000,000 in 1947 but start tapering off toward the end of the year.

Such an income would be about 6 percent above this year's estimated $165,000,000,000, the highest on record to date.

The bureau's 1947 estimate were in a reoprt prepared for the agriculture department's outlook conference of farm officials. The bureau said a high level of domestic industrial activity and relatively full employment during most of 1947 will contribute substantially to higher consumer incomes.

It said industrial production, as measured by the Federal Reserve board index, may average as much as 10 percent higher than this year and close to 35 percent above the 1935-39 average. This prediction was hedged with the provision that production is not retarded by major labor-management disputes.

The bureau looks, however, for somewhat of a decline in industrial production during the latter part of the year, as a backlog of consumer demand for industrial products becomes more nearly satisfied. Such a downturn in production would be reflected in lower incomes of workers in affected industries.

Large Deferred Demands

"Continued expansion in industrial activity is anticipated for the remainder of this year," the bureau said. "The large deferred demands for most industrial products will not be satisfied this year, but most of the backlog in demands for consumer goods, in addition to normal demands, should be filled in 1947, with the important exceptions of automobiles and housing."

The bureau said an important factor influencing the level of industrial activity in the latter part of 1947 is the likelihood of a decline in expenditures for some consumer non-durable goods, such as textiles. It said the backlog of demand and inventories for such goods may largely be filled in mid-1947.

While forecasting the rise in national income, the bureau said the net income of agriculture may be reduced as much as 10 to 15 percent from 1946.

Jobs Daughters, Bethel No. 15 will hold its regular meeting at the Masonic Temple Wednesday October 9.

'Don't Feed the Humans'

In Puerto Rican Simian Paradise Man Sits Inside the Cage While Monkeys on the Outside Look in Monkey's-eye-view: These inhabitants of Monkey Island, Puerto Rico, are outside the cage looking in at the humans. Cage protects monkeys, who have run of island, from catching man's diseases.

By Bert Brandt
Nea Staff Correspondent

MONKEY ISLAND, Puerto Rico —(NEA)—The truth is that I feel a little self-conscious sitting here in the big cage with the monkeys staring at me.

I wonder if a monkey ever thought of putting up a sign outside the cage reading "Please Don't Feed the Humans."

This island really is a monkey paradise. The cage is for the few human visitors that reach the island. It's built to protect the monkeys from getting any of the diseases that haunt the human race.

The 460 monkeys get free run of the place; their only human boss is Mike Tomlin, a powerfully built Russian, with a massive head, overhanging eyebrows and small darting eyes, who keeps glancing about when he talks to you much like the monkeys he has cared for during the past eight years.

The monkey business on the island began in 1938 when several philanthropic organizations and Columbia University picked it as a place to breed the animals for use in the study of infantile paralysis. Shortly after, the the Institute of Tropical diseases, as part of the program of the Insular government of Puerto Rico, took over the operation

Tomlin has been so closely associated with the monkeys for so long that he says he can understand what they are chattering about. He says the monkeys chat among themselves about any number of things and rumors sweep the island with great speed, especially news of approaching boats, which always means extra feedings.

Sentinel: Lady monkey on guard duty takes baby to work with her.

Originally, Tomlin says, there was only one colony, but because of differences of opinion the monkeys divided into what he calls "four nations and a bachelors' club." Each nation has a "president, vice president and secretary." Each lives in its own section of the island which it keeps patrolled at all times. If a monkey from another colony invades a rival's territory, a fight immediately results. And the guard, if he fails to give ample warning, is in for a beating by his own boys.

The business about the president, vice president and secretary seemed a little far fetched to me until I actually saw them in operation. At a feeding, which consists of boiled potatoes or various nuts and fruits, the "nation" waits in the background, while ahead, in a little group by themselves, sit the three officers. When Tomlin throws out the food, the "president" ambles over, picks the most apptizing, stuffs his mouth, and then goes back to sit down. The "vice president" and "secretary" make their selection next. Then comes the mob.

Girls are the only things the monkeys don't fight over, Tomlin says. There are nine females for every male and the boys don't seem to think any of them is worth scrapping about. Should one of the monkeys make a play for the "president's" current girl friend, it would cause little disturbance. But just let him make a pass at a boiled potato the big boy has his eye on!

The "bachelors' club" is made up of "wise guys and toughies" who want no part of the women and would rather spend their time stealing or fighting. They're the trouble makers of the island and they're not smart enough to know that when a batch of monkeys is due to be shipped out to a scientific laboratory, they're in it!

During the war the U. S. army made extensive use of the monkeys in experiments to protect GIs against tropical diseases. Tomlin is hoping now that the war is over scientists will come to the island and study the monkeys in their natural surroundings. He feels that a monkey in a cage does not react in a normal way to tests and that they really should be observed in their natural state.

I know I feel a little unnatural in this cage. I already have started moving my mouth in strange ways when I talk. The people back home may not understand.

The People Behind the Iron Curtain

Soviet People Don't Want War, Grateful to US American Writer Finds in Uncensored Tour

An Unhindered Camera Made These Pictures Of the People of the U. S. S. R.

HER CRADLE over her shoulder, this Russian woman returns to her home at the end of the day. After full day's work in the fields, she will get her children from the nursery, cook supper, then fall into bed, exhausted.

Editor's Note: The following dispatch is based on a 4,000 mile unguided, uncensored trip through the Soviet Union by an experienced editor and world traveler. Unusual facilities for talking to the Russian workers and farmers in their factories and homes and on their collective forms were obtained by the writer when he cabled Stalin after six months of efforts through regular channels had failed to get him a passport visa to Russia.

By John Strohm

MOSCOW—The Russian people do not want war.

They want peace, a chance to improve their standard of living, an opportunity to clear the ruins of World War II and build their homes, farms and factories for the future.

Those are my dominant impressions after an unparalleled opportunity to travel 4,000 miles through Byelorussia, the Ukraine, Caucasus and Moscow, without official guide or censor.

Few people have been permitted to travel unhindered through Soviet Russia. To the best of my knowledge, no other newspaper man has been given as great a freedom as I had—to go where I pleased, to talk freely with the people in their factories, in their markets and in their homes—and rarest of all, to take hundreds of pictures of life and conditions behind the so-called Iron Curtain.

This privilege was granted to me only after I had cabled Prime Minister Stalin when six months of efforts to obtain a visa through regular channels were unavailing. I appealed to Stalin to permit me, as a writer for American farm publications, to talk to the common people of Russia in hope of improving the understanding between our two peoples; ten days later I had the visa.

And I finished my tour with no sterner admonition from official sources than that of the minister of agriculture to "tell the truth."

No official asked to censor my copy and this dispatch is transcribed from my Russian notes, in New York. No one sought to conduct my travels, although on the half-dozen occasions my coming was known in advance, the Russians were quick to set up a welcome, dress the children in shoes and shirts, erect welcome posters, and set out elaborate banquet tables. It was easy to appreciate the pitfalls of the usual "conducted tour" and these occasions afforded me an opportunity for comparison with what I found when I arrived unheralded.

No Russian official has even examined the hundreds of photographs which I took in the cities and farms of Russia.

In Bylelorussia They Still Spade Barefoot

Much of the territory I covered was in the former "bread basket" of Russia. They're still spading barefooted in Byelorussia; they're still hungry; they're still living in the disastrous war they've just gone through.

They hate war as only those who have known its terrors can hate it; they can feel only horror at the thought of going through it all again against a nation which many of them assured me earnestly they love.

"America gave us food which kept us from starving," said a woman on the street in Moscow.

"America gave us Studebaker trucks which helped win the war," said a soldier in Stalingrad.

Other impressions which crowd to the fore in the kaleidoscopic pattern of my travels by plane, jeep, train, automobile and afoot include:

1. The Russian citizen knows much more about the United States than we have been led to expect, despite the limited reports on the outside world published in the controlled Russian press.

2. There is a genuine gratitude and appreciation not only for the assistance which the U. S. gave the Soviet Union to defeat the Germans, but also for the UNRRA food shipments which in some cases must be making the difference between life and widespread starvation in the two republics aided.

3. The people are amazed and baffled to read in their newspapers that the U. S. is plotting aggression against Russia and brandishing the atomic bomb offensively.

4. Communism, as practiced in Russia, is far from Utopia. In its present phase of development it features such boogies of U. S. left wing leadership as the speed-up, incentive pay and back-breaking work days.

When I returned to Moscow after my 4,000-mile travels, a correspondent greeted me at breakfast in the Hotel Metropol with the remark: "Well, I see where Tass (the Russian news agency) used your name this morning to answer President Truman."

I blinked. He showed me the story in the newspaper Pravda. Headlined "Tass Explanation," it commented on President Truman's statement that correspondents could not travel freely in Russia.

The "explanation" was, in effect: "Mr. Truman doesn't know what he's talking about. John Strohm, president of the American Agricultural Editors' Association, is traveling freely about the Soviet Union right now and talking with the people.

"And what about the people, are they looking for war?" my correspondent friend asked.

"I am not a strategist or a psychologist," I replied. "But the words of one Russian sounded to me like good sense. He said: 'Any one who says the Soviet Union wants war is crazy. The people have been living on promises of better things in the sweet bye and bye ever since the revolution. They accepted World War II as an excuse why they could not achieve a higher standard. Now they want to work for peace-time goals. Our government must consider the people—not war.'"

The man who said that was not an official. So far as I could determine he was sincere and grinding no party ax. My eyes and ears can vouch for what he says of the hunger of the Russian masses for the good things of life which communism has promised for 30 years as a reward for the sacrifices of self and liberty.

Whether the men in the Kremlin can give heed to that hunger is something no reporter, free or restricted, can answer. I have told only what I have seen and heard and pictured only what was before my lens.

A Pair of Army Shoes Brings $100 in Moscow

The Russian concern today is not beefsteak and automobiles; it is bread and shoes. A pair of army shoes sells for $100 in the Moscow market. Farm workers go barefoot.

I had planned to take a Russian friend "out" for dinner, until he gently pointed out it might easily cost $30 or so per person. So instead, I went to his home, waiting in line at a bread store for an hour. One look at his ration card and I was ashamed I had taken advantage of his hospitality.

Bread makes up more than half of the Russian diet. As an office worker, he gets a little more than a pound a day. Workers in industry get more. For the month, he gets two pounds of sugar, one and three-fourths pounds of fat, four and a half pounds of grits or macaroni, and four and eight-tenths pounds of fish or meat.

"Only the last two months my store hasn't had any fat or meat," he said.

Rations for his wife and little boy were much less. They are non-productive workers.

The free market or commercial store ekes out the meager rations. Milk was 80 cents a quart. A five-cent chocolate bar was $2.50. Sugar cost $12 a pound.

"It's been so long since we really had enough to eat," observed my friend, wistfully.

The average wage in the Soviet Union is less than 500 rubles a month—$40. A school teacher may get $32, a chauffeur $80 a month. The average factory worker in 1940 earned about $360 a year—less than a dollar a day. The Five Year Plan calls for a 50 per cent boost—earnings for the average worker in 1950 of 6,000 rubles, or about $480 a year.

John Strohm

John Strohm, the man who wrote this story about the Russian people and took these pictures behind the so-called Iron Curtain, is 34, married and father of three children. His home is in Chicago, but he grew up in Clark county, Ill., on the banks of the Wabash. Although his roots are in the prairie soil, his interests are international and he has traveled in 55 countries.

His religion is Baptist, his politics republican. He is a member of the Masonic Order.

After graduation from the University of Illinois and a writing trip around the world, during which he interviewed Gandhi, he joined the staff of Prairie Farmer, widely known mid-western agricultural journal. He was managing editor up to the time of his recent trip to Russia. He is president of the American Agricultural Editors' Association.

He is the author of a book, "I Lived With Latin Americans," based on a stay in South and Central America.

From where I sit ... by Joe Marsh

Want a Vacation from Marriage?

Alvin Blake went south on his vacation, for some fishing, and left his Missus to enjoy a vacation from the corncob pipe, clothes in a heap, and solos on the harmonica.

First few days, Martha enjoyed it—house neat and quiet, top back on the toothpaste, no morning mess from Alvin's midnight snacks (Al's partial to a bit of cheese and beer at bedtime).

Come the end of the week, she began to fidget; couldn't even read the Clarion, it looked so unmussed; didn't have any appetite with nobody to cook for. She was about to wire Al, when he barges home a week ahead of time, and she almost cries for gratitude. ("Felt the same way myself," says Al.)

From where I sit, those differences of habit and opinion—whether they have to do with corncob pipes, a glass of beer, or playing the harmonica, seem mighty trivial when you're separated. And they are, too!

The Daily Washington Merry-go-Round

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9—Today Gene Talmadge, the red gallused gentleman from Georgia convenes the state Democratic convention in Macon to prepare plans for Gene's forthcoming reign as governor of Georgia. In keeping with state tradition, Talmadge's opponents, Ed Rivers and Jimmy Carmichael (the latter actually received a larger vote than Talmadge) have surrendered their delegates to Gene and he will have complete sway over the Democratic party.

Taking advantage of that sway, Talmadge has had the brass to appoint as delegates the most variegated array of Ku Klux Klanners Georgia has seen in years. Talmadge delegates who will chart the future course of the Democratic party read like a roll call of the nightshirt brigade at Stone Mountain. Here are some of them:

Dr. Samuel Green, grand dragon for Georgia.

Sam Roper, exalted cyclops of Atlanta Klan No. 297; attends meetings in his police uniform, former head of the Georgia bureau of investigation under Talmadge.

Luke Arnold, recorder court judge, member of Atlanta Klan No. 1, speakes also at other klanverns.

A. W. Callaway, recorder court judge, attends Atlanta klan No. 1.

Howard Haire, city councilman and mayor pro tem, member klan No. 1.

Joe Allen, city councilman, attends klan No. 1. Allen was recently present in a professional gambling house when a sensational shooting occurred. As a result, he was forced to resign as a member of the governing board of his church, but his status both as a klansman and member of the Atlanta city council continues unimpaired.

O. B. Cawthon, city councilman, attends klan No. 1 and East Atlanta klan.

F. Lee Evans, city councilman, long-time secretary of Atlanta klan headquqarters.

Cecil Hester, city councilman and police commissioner, member klan No. 1.

Ellis Barrett, county commissioner, attends klan No. 1.

Neil G. Ellis, assistant chief, Atlanta police department, attends klan No. 1.

Jimmie Helms, city detective, head of klokan committee, klan No. 1.

R. E. Jones and O. R. Jones, county and city detectives, attend Atlanta klan 297.

H. C. Edson, klansman and brother of a klansman convicted in East Point klan flog case.

Dr. R. H. Eubanks, active speaker in klan No. 1.

Vester Ownby, former cyclops of Riverside (Atlanta) klan, now chief spokesman for new outfit "The Columbians" who describe themselves as "40 times worse than the klan."

These are the gentlemen who will do Talmadge's bidding at a convention (konvention is a better name) which will set policy for the Democratic party during the next four years. And since the Democratic party is all-powerful in Georgia, what this convention does will be the law in Georgia. Among other things, it plans to abolish all rules regulating primaries — and whoever wins the primary wins the final election in Georgia. It will also undertake plans to stop trains and buses at state lines in order to overrule the U. S. supreme court on Jim Crow laws.

Talmadge's boast is: "Gene always keeps his promises." And no matter how far it turns back the clock, the above-named klansmen will help him keep them.

Truculent Turtle's Freak Fire

Flight Commander Thomas D. Davies and crew members of the navy's Truculent Turtle will make a detailed report to the navy department of a scientific phenomenon that occurred while their ice-crusted plane was flying at 12,900 feet between Reno, Nev., and Ogden, Utah.

The propellor of the Truculent Turtle was enveloped by a huge halo of "St. Elmo's Fire," an electromagnetic discharge that resembles a greenish-blue flame and is four times as bright as the Northern Lights.

"St. Elmo's Fire" is not new to science. Its discovery dates back to the Middle Ages, when the same kind of electrical glow was observed around church steeples.

However, Commander Davies will report that never before in his experience as a navy pilot has an airplane undergone such a freakish hazard.

Small fingers of the blinding electrical flame darted up inside the bulletproof windshield, not inside the cockpit, but inside the very glass itself, creating a strange neon effect, Commander Davies disclosed in a preliminary report to superior officers at the navy department.

Meantime, all radio reception in the Truculent Turtle was cut off.

"It made our hair stand on end for a while," Commander Davies reported to friends. "Of course, I knew we were safe, because the gas tanks were well protected inside the plane, but it's hard to be objective when you are up in the clouds at night in a cockpit and something like that hits you."

Later, when the plane's windshield was examined, no apparent damage had been done to the glass by the freakish incident.

Capital Chaff

Wall street, though not working for Senator Jim Mead, would not be greatly disappointed if he licks Governor Tom Dewey in November. "The Street" already has decided Senator Bob Tatt is its man for the 1948 presidential nomination and feels it would be easier to put Taft over if Dewey fails in his bid for re-election as governor of New York. . . . There are now two sub rosa pilgrimages which bigwig visitors make in Washington; to the Wardman Park hotel to visit with Henry Wallace and to Oxon Hill, Md., to visit Sumner Welles. President Truman might be surprised at some of those still in his administration who have been seen in the vicinity of both. . . . The famous foreign policy speech by Secretary of the Interior Krug which, unlike Wallace's, never was delivered, consisted of 19 pages. The state department killed 17 pages, sent 2 pages back "cleared." Although it did not go as far as Wallace, the Krug speech did take issue with some parts of the Byrnes policy. It was after he heard of Krug's treatment by the state department that Wallace wrote his speech and sent it to the White House direct. . . . Postmaster General Bob Hannegan, worried over the administrative fumbling of the Palestine problem, has written President Truman urging that he send Ed Pauley to London to try to get some action in improving the situation in the displaced persons camps for Jews in Germany.

THE STORY: When Gayle tells her friend, Rose Beecher, about her engagement to handsome Bruce Bartlett, famous athlete and scion of wealth, Rose is horrified. She claims that Bart is selfish, spoiled and conceited. She puts these qualities into a sketch she draws of him at his request. Gayle and Bart leave for Germantown, to visit his parents.

* * *

IV

SYCAMORE, the Bartlett estate, was not, as Gayle had always supposed it was, in Germantown but well into the country, miles beyond. Indeed, it seemed to her as she and Bart drove through the darkness that it must be completely isolated.

"Are you off entirely by yourselves?" she asked Bart.

"Oh, no." He waved his hand. "There are estates all around here, but most of 'em have lots of ground, and you can't see the houses from the road even in the daytime. We're over a mile back ourselves."

Gayle shrank back in her seat; then, feeling lonely, she moved close to Bart and slipped her arm under his. She was becoming really frightened. From the first she had, naturally, been nervous about the visit, but Mrs. Bartlett's note had been kind. "I am so very anxious," she had written, "to meet the girl Bruce loves, and so is my husband. He is very dear to us, and we expect you to be too." The courage the note had brought her was fading rapidly away.

Details that Bart had let fall in their three years of knowing each other began to collect in her memory. His mother had a maid and a secretary—and a housekeeper. Then there was a butler. She was sure of that. And Mr. Bartlett had a nurse now. There was probably a chauffeur, too. Oh dear, there must be a dozen servants. And Mrs. Bartlett was having a party tomorrow night, a dance. All the girls would probably have dresses from Hattie Carnegie or the rue de la Paix, and she had made hers herself. She and her mother had thought it perfect, and Rose had pronounced it a dream—but what did Rose know about dresses?

* * *

SHE shivered, and Bart asked solicitously, "Cold, dear?"

"Cold with terror," she confessed, drawing as close to his side as possible. "I'm scared, Bart; I'm scared silly."

The night rang with his shout of laughter. "What of? There's nothing to be scared of."

"Yes, there is. My father is a professor in an Ohio college. I'm proud to death of him, but he isn't rich, and yours—"

"Mine?" Bart interrupted, laughing again. "You can't be scared of Father. Nobody is, not even the servants. I guess he was tough in his day when he was making his money, but that was a long time ago, and he's certainly nothing to be scared of now. He's kind of like a professor himself, I guess. Anyway, he doesn't care about anything any more but books and flowers."

"But your mother," Gayle ventured timidly. "She's very beautiful, isn't she?"

"I'll say! She certainly is. She's a knockout if there ever was one. But she's the softest hearted thing you can imagine. I can get her to do anything I want to. I always could. You're my girl, and that'll be enough for her. You'll see."

A mile from the road? It seemed to Gayle that Bart drove for miles through a forest, and then suddenly she saw a great white house looming ghost-like before her. "Oh dear," she thought once more; "oh dear." That wasn't a house. It was a palace—one of those incredible places she had read about with ninety rooms and armies of servants. And Bart thought that some day she would be its mistress.

"Oh no," she cried to herself, panic-stricken; "I can't. I never can. I don't want to."

* * *

ALMOST, it seemed, before Bart stopped the car, two men appeared. Both of them said, "Good evening, Mr. Bruce." One went to the baggage compartment and opened it. The other opened the door beside Gayle and held it while she descended.

"Grease her up, will you, Tom?" Bruce said to the man at the car door. "There's a squeak."

"Tonight, sir?"

"Oh no. I won't want it before ten tomorrow."

"Yes, sir."

Gayle sighed. It didn't seem as if she could walk up the broad steps before her. The door had opened, and she could see the butler waiting. What was she walking into? How had she dared?

Bart took her arm and felt her sway a little.

"Stiff, dear?" he asked.

She laughed nervously. "Stiff with fright. Oh, Bart, this is terrible."

"No, it isn't. Come on. You'll see it isn't in about two minutes. Besides, there's just Mother to meet now. Father has been in bed for hours. Come on, sweetheart."

"I'm coming. Tell the family I faltered but did not flee—and I want lots of music at the funeral."

Laughing, Bruce put his arm around her and ran her up the steps. "Hello, Symes," he said as they passed the butler. "Where's my mother?"

"Right here, Bruce, dear," a rich contralto voice answered. "I've been waiting."

Bart released Gayle, stepped quickly to his mother, put his arm around her, kissed her lips, and then held out his hand.

"Come here, Gayle," he said, his eyes smiling into hers.

Mrs. Bartlett held out both hands. "Come, my dear," she said, "and let me look at you."

Feeling like a drab scullery maid, Gayle approached shyly and placed her hands in Mrs. Bartlett's. If her life had depended on speech at that moment, she could not have produced one word.

Grocers Going To Convention

Over Thirty From Sedalia Make Reservations

More than thirty Sedalia Retail grocers have made reservations, and will be leaving Sunday morning to attend the 47th Anniversary Convention of the Missouri Retail Grocers Association being held at Jefferson City Sunday and Monday October 13th and 14th.

Curtailed during the war years, the annual convention of Missouri Grocers will return to its prewar status, with an extensive program of business and entertainment. Between four and five hundred grocers from over the state are expected to attend.

Virgil Corson, Howard Gwinn and Leonard Anderson are members of the Executive board of the Missouri Grocers Association, and M. D. Weathers is a past president.

The two day program will include a business session Sunday afternoon October 13th followed by a banquet, floor show and dance Sunday night. Monday's session will be all business and will include the annual election of officers. A luncheon has been arranged for the ladies Monday noon at the Jefferson City Country Club.

Outstanding Speaker

Mrs. Rose Marie Kiefer of Chicago, secretary manager of the National Association of Retail Grocers and a nationally recognized authority on the food field, will be one of the outstanding convention speakers. She will address the annual banquet meeting, to be held on Sunday night, speaking on "What About Tomorrow." In her talk she will outline the need for greater salesmanship and greater efficiency of operation which the food retailer must consider if he is to be successful in the future.

During 1945 Mrs. Kiefer traveled 27,970 miles from coast to coast to keep speaking engagements in nearly every state and aid her in keeping in close touch with more than 60,000 independent retail food merchants as well as government agencies and officials. She has frequently testified before congressional committees on the subject of the nation's food supply and is much sought after as a speaker before industry and other business groups.

She is a member of the Food Industry Council President Truman's Famine Emergency Council, the American Trade Association Executives, and the board of directors of the National Live Stock and Meat Board. She also served as an instructor at the recent National Institute for Commercial and Trade Organization Executives held at Northwestern University under joint sponsorship of the university, the U. S. Chamber of Commerce and the American Trade Association Executives. She has held her present post as national association secretary-manager since 1939 and has been editor of National Grocers Bulletin since 1936.

Other convention sessions will feature speakers who will discuss the various modern trends and phases of retail grocery operation and future outlooks.
